1. Up to the spring of 1950 Hungary received the following materiel from the Soviet Union:
 - 28,000 submachine guns
 - 60 antiaircraft guns, 37 mm.
 - 68 75-mm. guns
 - 120 120-mm guns
 - 600 mortars, 82 mm.
 - 850 mortars, 120 mm.
 - 76 rocket launchers (Katyusha)
 - 280 T-34 tanks
 - 30 heavier tanks
2. Some of this materiel was in poor condition. For example, most of the tanks were in need of repairs, and some of them even had to be sent back and exchanged for others.
3. Small arms are being manufactured in several factories in Hungary in adequate quantity. Machine guns also are in sufficient supply; they are produced at Csepel.
4. [redacted] artillery is now being produced at Diós Gyár. This production started in April 1950, and at first the production rate was as follows:

76.2-mm. guns	80 units per month
45-mm. antitank guns	120 units per month

It was anticipated that these figures would be increased to 100 and 150 units respectively.
